Another one Sold Off Market & Another Smashed Record Price ... We didn't Even Ge

Going, Going, Gone, If you blinked, you would miss this sale, another perfect match up and another perfect negotiation.

Next door was on the market for what felt like an eternity with another agent and it sold for a depressingly low number, proving once again that all agents are definitely not created equal.

While the agent selling next door seemed to take an eternity and our owners were fixing up this and that in their villa we patiently waited for the neighbouring property to sell.

When it eventually did sell, we got on the phone to let the owners know we were ready and chomping at the bit to get going and to let them know we had met someone at another villa
